POLICY CONTENT

What is Harassment?

Harassment is any behaviour, which is not asked for and not wanted and that happens because of a person’s sex, race, age, marital status, pregnancy, disability or sexuality. Harassment may be explicitly directed at an individual or group or occur through the creation of a hostile environment. Harassment offends, upsets, humiliates or intimidates another person. It makes the workplace uncomfortable and unpleasant.

Harassment is not always intended - acts or behaviour, which some see as amusing or trivial may hurt or offend another. To prove harassment, the complainant does not need to demonstrate disadvantage. It is sufficient to have felt offended, humiliated or intimidated by the behaviour and for it to be reasonable to have felt that way. Harassment can often occur when power is used wrongly. Harassment can have a serious adverse impact on the work satisfaction and performance of staff and students.
Types of Harassment

Harassment in the workplace can take many forms. It can be overt or subtle, direct or indirect for example, where a hostile feeling/environment is created without any direct attacks being made on a person.

Harassment can include:

- unnecessary familiarity such as deliberately brushing against, patting, touching or grabbing a person;
- crude, threatening or unwelcome telephone calls, requests, notes, drawings, faxes, or emails;
- derogatory comments or speculation about a person’s personal life;
- sexist or racist jokes, or jokes which make fun of a person’s age or disability;
- suggestive comments about a person’s body or appearance;
- personally offensive, abusive or insulting verbal comments;
- the malicious spreading of rumours;
- a pattern of deliberately ignoring or excluding a person, for example, on the basis of race;
- sexually or racially explicit or offensive material that is displayed in a public place or put in a work area.

[These examples are not exhaustive]

In an endeavour to address harassment all staff are required to:

- comply with this Harassment Policy;
- access training and awareness raising professional development provisions offered;
- encourage the development of a harassment free environment among students, workers, parents and the wider community;
- comply with the procedures for managing incidents of harassment as documented in the related policies and guidelines.
